Building the Future

Wesleyan College
Macon, Georgia

The Munroe
Science Center

A commitment to growth and development...

From participation, interaction with others, and trying new things, Wesleyan students build the future as they begin to develop themselves and their own abilities. Set as guides on this stage in Life's Great Adventure are the Wesleyan cornerstones of academics, women, faith, and community. With these concepts as points on the compass, each student can chart her own future.

is reflected in all areas of Welseyan life.

From first year to senior year, and even beyond college itself, there is always a new challenge to which a Wesleyanne must rise. And rise to it she does, with determination, grace, and very strong coffee.

Smile....you're on candid camera!

After monsterring around for two hours, the equestrian team and fans regroup for one last scare: the Halloween photo-op.

Hillary Jarrett and Kelly Hudson sport big grins at the Cherry Blossom Festival Finale. Hillary even dons festive, if possibly off season, rabbit ears.

The Susan G. Komen Race for the Cure always draws a crowd - even Saturday at 8am!

Having fun in the rain, these freshmen Wesleyannes enact another one of Wesleyan's many traditions: the forced dip into the fountain. Sophomore Kritika Thapa walks away: 'I've got homework!'

It's ASIA time! Grace Dolbec, Sehresh Saleem, Barbara Murotake and their Korean and Japanese exchange friends are tasting the goodies of ASIA...

That's one way of bringing the world together, and definitely the most tasty.

Romanian first years Alexandra Radu and Raluca Ursu are enjoying a quiet song-filled evening....wait, did I just say quiet?!

We always knew Ina Rachita had musical skill....after all, she showed it year after year, in every show possible...we tried to smile...

Steady, steady, you can do it...Ah, 100% coverage.

The Wesleyannes in the Spring Concert display their musical powers in a selection of classic and modern songs.

And the smiling continueswhether they like it or not.

Indulging in their favorite past-time, Ina Rachita, Cristiana Baloescu and Alexandra Radu are filling up on nicotine in front of Persons...where was that non-smoking area again?

NO SMOKING

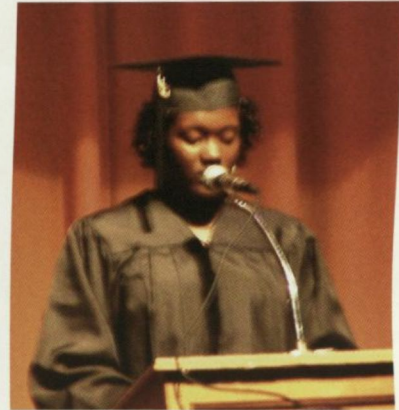

There are few things in life that compare to a match of will in the cafeteria, in front of a camera...These students (and suitemates) agree.

At the making of the International Dinner.

She's frustrated, I'm frustrated!

Food, food, so much food! Kritika, why did you do this to me? Chop!

SGA president, Alysia Johnson.

The lounges of Persons are a magical place, filled with stress, exam anxiety, sleep deprivation, and plenty of food to cure all that. Residents are taking advantage. Coming soon, to a lounge near you.

Who says that when it's hot, it has to stay hot? Classes or not, the Wesleyannes know when it's time for a break, and hit the pond...or shall we say the plastic swimming pool?

These four members of A.X.I.S. gather to support the International Festival, through a cafeteria march.

I have always wondered what professors discuss during lunch or dinner, segregated from the rest of the dining hall...we tried to read their lips, but failed miserably. So we took consolation in a candid. Bon appetit, Dr. Rhoades!

The first pep rally is always a contest of color and sisterhood spirit. These seniors are trying to set a good example to the first years...

Spontaneous dance from the Cabbies... We caught Faith Sumpter in action!

The first years are also lined up in the Rec Room, to learn about STUNT.

LAURA STAUB

Director of Student Activities

For developing the Leadership series,
For smiling through 4pm Friday meltdowns,
For being so cheerful it passed descriptive adjective and became a zen-like state of being,
For encouragement when it was needed,
For standing back when it wasn't,

We say thank you, Laura, for everything.

STUDENT LIFE

From Orientation as a first year in August to Graduation as a senior in May, there is a lot of time to fill (approximately 128 weeks). A lot of that time was filled by classes, convos, labs, projects, and presentations, but when it came to fun activities, Wesleyannes were even more pressed to get everything done.

Campus boards and organizations put on a variety of activities, such as Casino Night, Midnight Movie, Class Soccer, Dances, Poetry Night, and, of course, STUNT.

In addition, there were hall programs, the Cherry Blossom festival, foreign films, impromptu fountain parties, and pep rallies.

Campus Activity Board's Fun Day offers students a chance to remember why those bouncy houses are always so popular.

Nothing like hanging out in the fountain on a rainy day.

The Cherry Blossom Festival Finale with music and fireworks draws even the most diligent students from the books.

Seniors happily go about the business of trashing campus.

"When they said well rounded, I didn't know drywall was part of the liberal arts college experience!"

Cabbies show the love.

Attitude does not always intimidate.

The Spring semester affects us all in different ways.

Lunch on campus is no reason not to look stylish.

Bowling Night

Can the elusive 7-10 split be achieved?

SRC's bowling night, a cherished tradition in the Student Life line-up, was well attended as novice and amateur bowlers alike bowled their hearts out.

Chelsea Lalla gets her game face on, before heading off to the lane.

Pizza time! Need I say more?

Morgan Felts, Kris Fenn, and Chelsea Lalla enjoy the chance for much needed fun and socializing.

Casino Night

...it's one way to pay tuition!

Each October, the invitations appear in mailboxes, and poker chip displays grace the dining tables. This when the student body knows it is time for CAB's Casino Night. Students pay $2 for chips, and the proceeds of the event benefit the Suzanne Tante Memorial Scholarship.

"Look, I can't bet for you, but I can tell you what to bet," advises Lucy Guy.

Dr. "Texas Jim" Morey preens over his belt buckle, available in truck stops nationwide.

"Winner every time," declares Jennifer Robinson, Blackjack dealer. And there is too - the House.

The comped gamers (Erica Darden, Audriea Davis, Materra Drafts, and Ashanti Shanklin) arrive prepared for action and big money.

"Okay, what is 6 and 9 again? Doesn't matter, hit me." Dr. Donmoyer, Ashley Carter, Jazmine McKellar and Heather Glass build valuable math and communication skills.

"So, this is the new admission system!" marvels Patty Gibbs, VP of Enrollemnt Services and Student Affairs.

Marilyn (Megan Poole) bets it all.

Looking suitably dapper, John Skelton guards his chips from grasping hands - namely the gamblers.

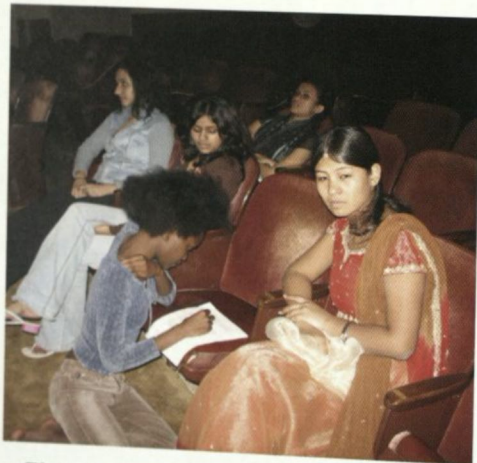

Adrienne Anderson, Tanya Parker and Sara Davis are obviously in an organized gambling scheme. "Okay, you do puppy eyes and we'll take the chips and run."

Halloween Hauntings

Even though it was a school night, Wesleyan celebrated Halloween in the proper style - with humor, horror, and candy. The first years proudly unveiled their Haunted Halls, the Equestrian Club gamely applied grease paint and fake blood for their annual Haunted Barn, and CAB broke out the portable grills and marshmallows for a cookout by the fountain.

Meanwhile Jen Thiesen demonstrates that even the undead appreciate romance.

The Easter Bunny (Heidi Hunter) makes an unseasonal appearance at first floor Wortham's Halloween Town.

Jazmine McKeller is terrified by the Haunted Halls.

Emily Overstreet, Rebecca Turner, and Stephanie Hood take a brief respite from scaring the paying masses senseless.

Far left: Severed, floating body parts cause distress to Caitlin McKinnon at the Haunted Barn.

Caroline Black and Adrienne Anderson aren't too sure about all of the weirdos out and about.

Sarah Kaplan and April Roos show just how grueling the first semester at school can be!

The undead pose for a quick photo before descending upon the living. In life their names were Heather Glass, Jie-soen Yang, Barbara Murotake, and Jen Theisen. In the back, April Roos looks for an escape.

Moushumi Dey takes time off from vamping around to tell Santa (Ruth Glass) what a good girl she's been. Santa looks less than impressed.

For Halloween, Wortham 1st sublet their floor to the inhabitants from Halloweentown.

"You think its done yet?" wonders Sara Evans surveying her marshmallow at CAB's Halloween cookout.

Someone said 'Lights!'

A quick peek at the Dining Hall before the madness truly began...

The Golden Hearts are not ready to lose their last battle, and take their fair share of the dining hall, all in yellow.

The GKs are hurrying to put on the last touches of green—anything as the end of the evening approaches.

Everybody frantically begins to add color to the wall, which looks conquered mostly by the GK/PK sister classes.

And then there was COLOR RUSH...

No corner is far enough for it to be reached by the power of a heart...Golden Heart, that is!

Pirates share the business at hand.

Whatever space they left empty, fill it! I want green in between those hearts, STAT!

"Quickly, we need to regroup!" Interestingly enough, I think the red ladder is on the Pirate's side.

Wesleyan Women are kicking it in style

Golden Hearts!

And victory shall be ours!

Wait, wait! where have all the smart ladies gone?

Homecoming '06

Since this is Wesleyan, nothing was crazier than the Homecoming pep-rally. Painting yourself yellow and clothing yourself in red is something Julia Drake and Stephanie Furst are well acquainted with, as the top photograph shows. Go Pirates! Next: the first year Purple Knights had the duty to adorn campus. Their chocolate fairy-tale land theme left the campus buildings purple and the students craving Hershey's. They did have to clean up, eventually.

Why, they're home.

In Wesleyan. The Georgia one.

Where's
Party?

The Wesleyan community celebrated Homecoming at the Georgia Sports Hall of Fame, combining dance, camera poses and joking around with museum exhibits. Some wore the classic little black dress, some came in their national outfit, or another country's national outfit, some arrived early with the shuttle while others came late. Some danced, others preferred to sit. But all in all, everybody had at least one embarrassing moment, one fabulous smile, and one compliment for their outfit. Which means everyone had fun.

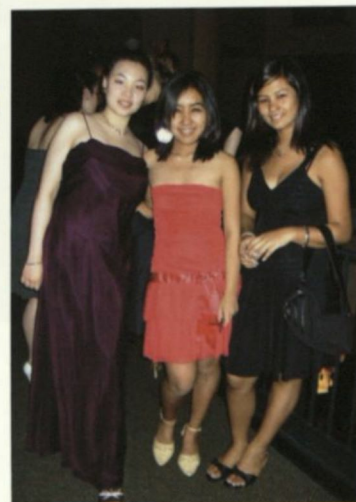

The winners are:
3. Jie-soen Yang
2. Kriti Rai
1. Shreeti Raithore
Well, maybe not quite.

And here it is, ladies and gents, the place where all the action took place. The dance floor!

Rhea Walsh, Missy Poole and Megan Huff ponder what to do next. We're sure they picked the dance floor.

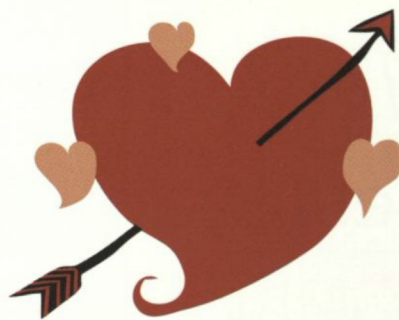

Jie-soen Yang, Kriti Rai, and Shreeti Raithore pose to show their outfits.

Kalene Kennedy, Cristiana Balboa, and Raluca Ursu share some drinks and some gossip.

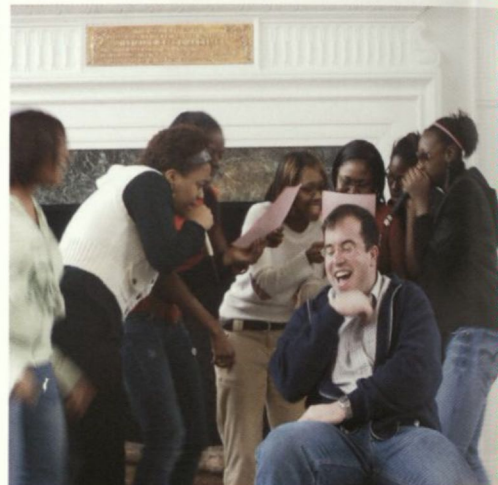

Valentine's Day

A Day for Love, Friendship, and Extreme Embarrassment

In honor of Valentine's Day, BSA held a singing telegram fundraiser, where, for a modest contribution, they would happily, cheerfully, and enthusiastically serenade the person of your choice. Dr. Edwards was not the only recipient of such a gift...just the reddest.

The usual Valentine hubbub in the Dining Hall. Clockwise from top:

Jessica Salazar and Janet Rodriguez cheer on the serenaders.

Cabbies man the table of Valentine goodies.

Audriea Davis bends over Toby Itsembe before the singing starts.

The GH turned their Casino into the Love Shack

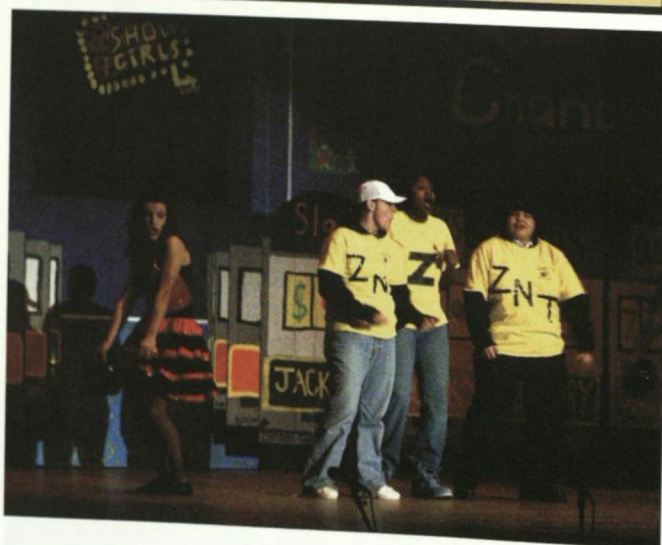

There's one secret known by all Wesleyannes: daddys are blind when it comes to their little girls...and their happiness.

"The same thing we do every day, Binky: try to pull off the biggest scam in the world!"

The casino overflows with music, dance and burglary plans.

Laura Staub, working, even on stage. The only difference is that she smiles a lot more in real life. Dr. Mettler supports Wesleyan tradition, as always, by playing the piano.

Dr. Barry Rhoades delights the student body with yet another guitar solo. Actually, no solo: the rest of the faculty chips in.

The brains uncovering the secret plan. Dr. Jim Morey and Dr. David Edwards tap into their paranoia to solve the mystery surrounding President Knox.

What did the agents discover? What vile plan did the Wesleyan faculty concoct?

There they are, as we never see them in class...loony. Well, actually, we do see them like this, just not set to music.

Junior Java

At Wesleyan's Junior Java, held in the Oval Hall, Green Knights were able to indulge in two long cherished past times - drinking coffee and arts and crafts. The question is: does a double shot of espresso mix with creative expression? Groups display their answers to this question at top, left, and center.

Jessica Kendrick practices her supervisory skills as Stephanie Hood, Jasmine Jackson, Tanya Parker, and Charmin Green hurriedly write.

Jie-soen Yang, Kris Fenn, Natalia Pszenny, and Faith Sumpter display the fruits of their labors.

Jasmine Jackson stands over all and surveys her empire of white and green paper.

Sehresh Saleem displays her hoola hoop-ing skills as Tiffany Herd looks on.

The Navy Band entertains as revelers wait for the fireworks.

Circle K's pinatas sway in the breeze, unaware of what fate awaits them.

At long last the main event of the evening...fireworks!
Filling the sky with color, and the air with smoke, everyone gets a neck-ache from looking up so long,
but all agree the show was worth it.

Ladies and Gentlemen,

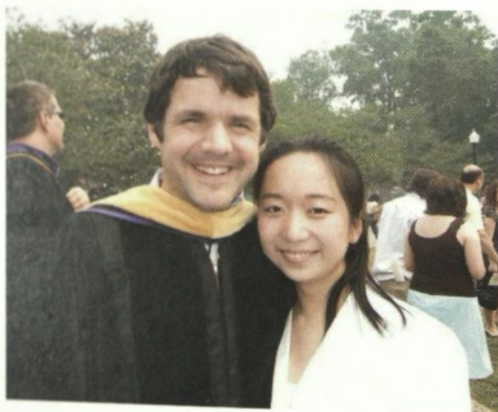

After the rehearsal and Dr. BT's jokes, the class photo, and the endless waiting in OSP, the incredible happened. The Golden Hearts graduated.

Golden Hearts and hooders await the march to the auditorium.

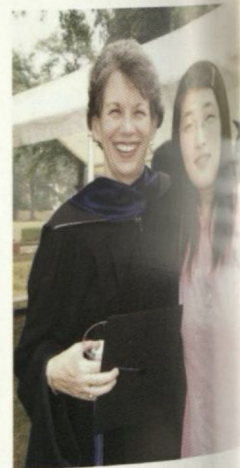

The line of Golden Hearts and hooders advances towards the auditorium for the graduation ceremony. There is always a way to show class spirit, and the gold shoes are this year's graduation story.

Dr. Jim Morey and Chen Chen

We will all miss Dr. Ealy and his skillful poetry reciting. Not to mention the delicious cakes he can make. Excellent!

What graduation would be complete without the strobe light effect of hundreds of camera flashes? Well, this one was in no danger. Every millisecond was recorded for posterity (and Facebook).

The Graduates!

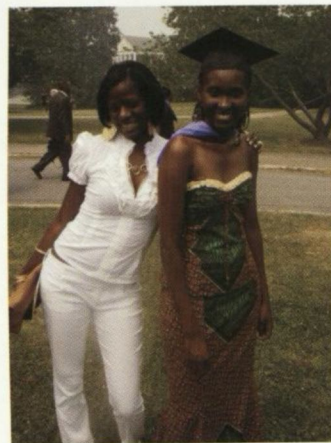

After all the endless study nights, midnight Kroger runs, crazy break partying, smoking fines, long labs leading to the discovery of some deep dark biological secret (or just the pangs of hunger), cafeteria experiments, meetings, and the favorite midnight movie, our friends of the Golden Heart class have finally reached the end of the road...and however bumpy the road might have been, I'm sure they did not walk it alone. Where would the fun be in that?

The course of Wesleyan life....minus about 10 000 events every year.

This scene of Treena Bailey and the three smiling graduates Miya Lewis, Materra Drafts, and Alysia Johnson was one of many going on in front of the Auditorium.

Anna-Kaye Burgher and Mboka, proud graduate, smile for the masses.

Courtney Mitchell also displays a big smile, as she sets off to discover the cure for cancer... Honestly, we wouldn't be surprised.

Anna-Kaye continues the photo session, this time with Miya Lewis and Materra Drafts.

Jessica Rowell, the Wesleyanne with the most cords around her neck... surrounded by friends, as always.

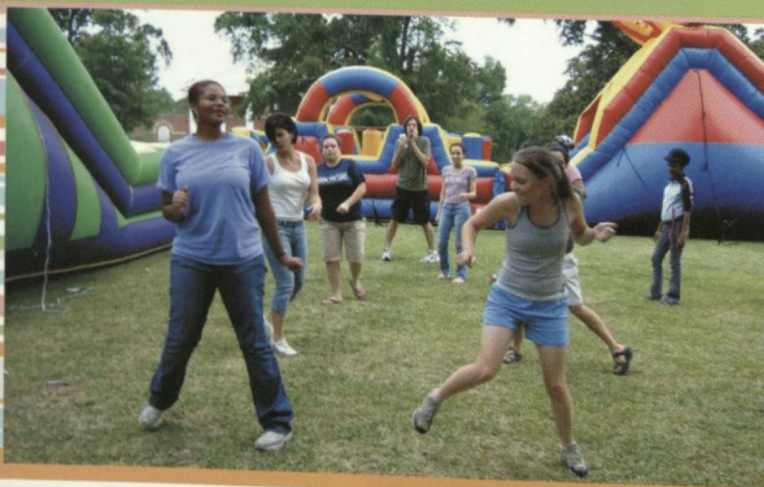

What's the BUZZ, tell me what's happening...

Like this card castle, Wesleyan events are tough to prepare, and end too fast, but are remembered for a long long time.

STUDENT LIFE

ACTIVITIES

The active music department puts on events such as the Spring Concert, Christmas Concert and student recitals.

Wesleyan plays are events attended and celebrated by the entire Macon community.

The international festival is yet another event that brings people from all over the world together.

One of the many ways Wesleyan shows that it cares: the Race for the Cure, held yearly on campus.

SPORTS

The sun beats down overhead. The cement and metal bleachers offer support, but not comfort to the gathered spectators. Screams and cheers, cries and groans fill the air. "Go 'Neers!", "Come on ladies, get tough!", and simply "Go, go, go!"

Whether it's soccer, softball, cross country, basketball, or equestrian, Wesleyan's Pioneers work hard, play hard, and aim for victory. And regardless of the heat, the seats or that paper due the next day (or maybe because of it...) Wesleyannes, faculty, and staff troop out and offer their support.

In between the wind-up and the pitch.

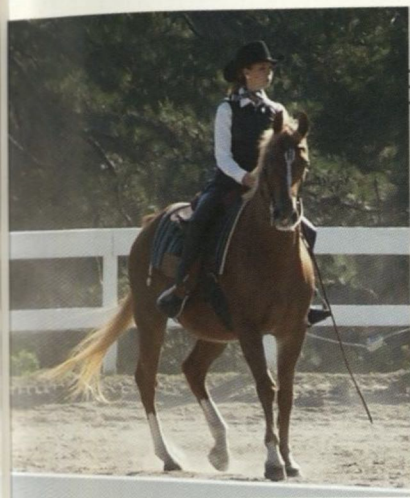

Mere seconds later that ball will fly across the field, stopped only by the opposing goalie.

"Guard, guard, guard!"

"Huh, that's new." What is? We'll never know.

Hi ho, Silver, away!

"Why do we have to run up and down the court so many times? This is insane!"

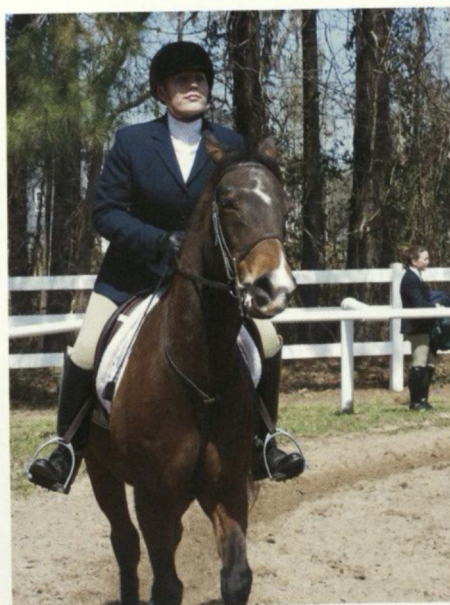

Minutes of waiting followed by seconds of adrenaline boosting fielding.

The Pioneers discuss, evaluate, and regroup.

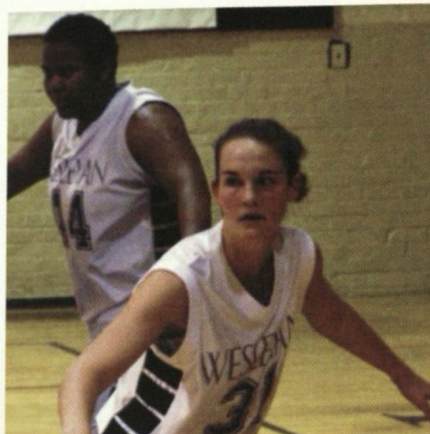

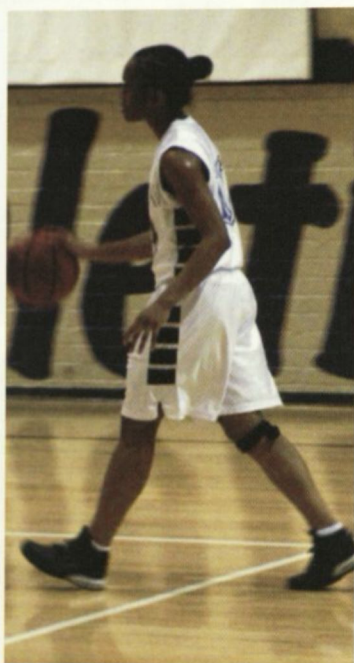

"Hang on! I'm coming to help!"

First I win this show, then off to the fox hunt.

Basketball

Carissa Mitchell unhurriedly dribbles the ball down the court.

At top: Cecelia Batt and Davida Dwyer guard the court.

At top right: Davida Dwyer, Cecelia Batt, and Carissa Mitchell wait for the opponent to make their move.

Crystal Church uses a time out for a chance to take a quick breather.

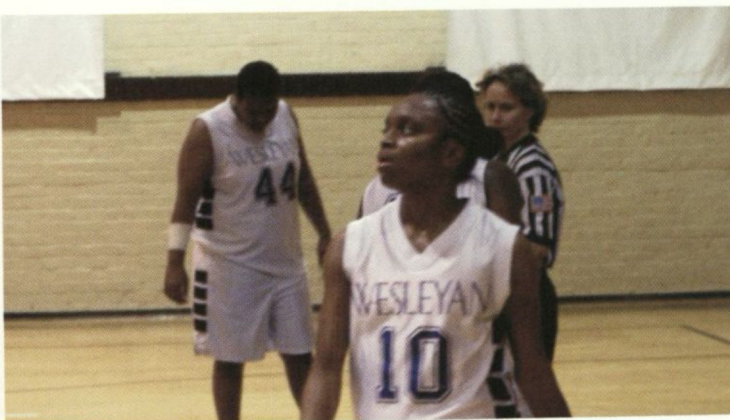

Crystal Church in the foreground as players go tearing after the ball.

Cecelia Batt and Carissa Mitchell guard Piedmont players, preventing them from getting the ball and scoring.

Everyone scrambles for position as the ball sails towards the net.

Erica Darden guards a player, hoping to intercept the ball should it come that way.

With a lull in the action Carissa Mitchell takes a look around, seeing what is going on.

Equestrian

Jennifer Thiesen posts while the horse trots around the arena.

At top: Nothing like a blue ribbon to make a show worthwhile.

"Heels down, toes up, use your knees, sit up straight, remember to post."

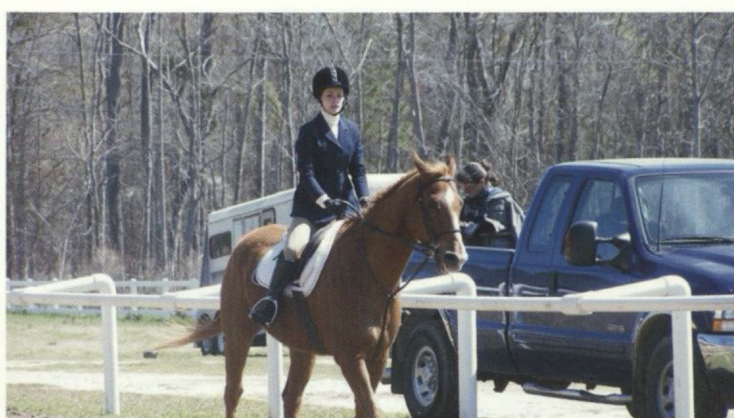

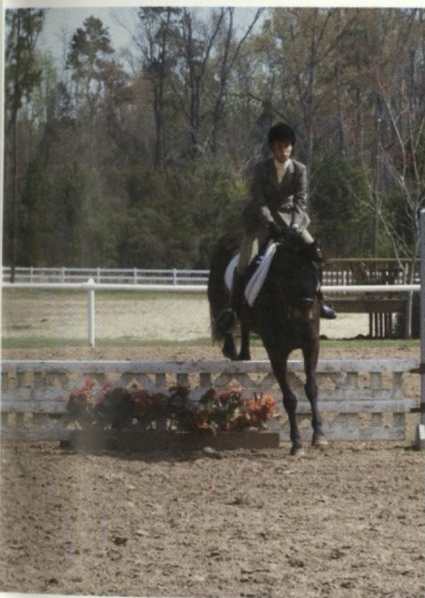

The riders enter the arena and attempt to win that elusive gold, (or blue ribbon in this case).

Nothing like Western Showmanship.

First, the picket fence. Next up, a re-enactment of that scene from The Man from Snowy River.

Amanda Dotson provides entertainment and commentary between events.

This simply shows that tradition and technology can coexist, as Rhea Walsh competes in the arena.

Soccer

At top: Melissa Herndon prepares to kick the ball down the field.

At right: Hillary Jarrett scrambles to keep the ball from being kicked out.

Julia Drake cuts in and attains control of the ball.

The ball is in the air, and the players get in position. The Pioneers will triumph, of course.

Tiffany Cribbs is fully determined to keep the ball even as someone tries to take it.

Once again, the ball is in the air. Actually, where is it?

Another panoramic view of the global obsession that is soccer.

Softball

Lacie King takes a moment to adjust her hair, but then is back to business.

At top: Sierra Morris up at bat.

At right: Pitcher Amy Kipp winds up.

"Hey batter, batter, swing batter! Go 'Neeres!"

Three Pioneer players wait for the pitch, the swing, and, if necessary, the catch.

Amy Kipp, Lacie King,
ready and alert.

Break time! The infielders gather up and head over to the dugout.

Amber Carden waits and watches.

Janna Brown swung, hit, and is about to drop the bat and run.

Organizations

Involvement begets involvement. Or, to put it another way, no one at Wesleyan does just one thing. Chances are, the secretary of one organization is the vice president of another.

Opportunities to gain leadership skills, build a resume, try something new, make new friends, or just kill an evening around.

There are groups for human rights, political activism, journalism, creative arts, music, business, economics, foreign languages (French, Spanish, and German so far), philosophy, dancing, scholastic abilities, and cultural awareness.

PEOPLE

People are a major component to life at Wesleyan. Roommates, suitemates, lunch mates, lab partners, teammates, RAs, CRAs, study buddies, classmates, Waffle House confederates, fellow club members, and the people you meet in the hall at 2am; all are part of the Wesleyan experience.

Long after the difference between subjunctive and conditional verbs, the Latin name for "earthworm", and the criteria for continuity at a point have all been forgotten, memories of Wesleyannes will remain.

Inducting the first years into the wonder that is STUNT.

Being at a women's college is no reason not to dress up.

Homecoming means a chance to upload more photos onto Facebook.

Lunchtime...the social time of the day.

Halloween or a conflict resolution convo? You make the call.

Is Class Soccer all uphill? No, but camera thought it was. (At the end of the 2nd half, the players did too.)

Even the superbly cool will occasionally stop for a photo.

Finally a chance to see high culture for free! That's right, its an adaptation of Treasure Island!

A hallmark of Wesleyan involvement... sitting at an information and/or fundraising table.

Purple Knights

With cheers, fears, and FIS, the First Year is always an eventful one. According to most "what college is like" books, this is the year a student learns that no person is totally and completely original, how to communicate clearly and in a mature fashion with others, and that entering adulthood is a difficult, yet rewarding process.

What a student really learns that first year is where to buy purple war paint at 2am, just how many post-it notes it takes to cover a cafeteria wall, how to write a ten page paper than concisely defines the meaning of life with 15 sources that will account for 33% of the grade that is due in two hours, and that good communication skills do not include locking your roommate in the bathroom just for fun.

And yet, it really is one of the best years ever.

Whether with butterfly wings, bandanas, war paint, or purple shirts and team spirit, the Purple Knights charge forth to leave their mark in annals of Wesleyan folklore.

Pirates

As a returning student, a sophomore must be inducted into one more Wesleyan tradition: moving all one's worldly possessions from Banks 3rd to the new dorm during a sweltering August day.

This year the only question a sophomore student must address (besides essay questions, of course) is: I'm doing this again? Somehow the days seem shorter, but the curriculum seems longer.

However, there are great moments. The STUNT gets better, you have a bunch of insider jokes with friends, you know the night shift at Waffle House and Krogers, and Wesleyan and college life feels more and more like home.

With lots of red shirts and school spirit, the Pirates continue to prove loud and proud in their commitment to Wesleyan's traditions.

Green Knights

Welcome back once again. This time you're the big sister, so August finds you covered in Crayola making signs for the first years. This is the year of great hopes. This year you will win STUNT, this year you will win class soccer, this year you will take your remaining general education requirements, and you will get serious about raising your GPA.

The air is filled with career and grad school talk and your desk is covered with yet more papers and projects. You hear the sophomores complain, and offer them comfort. "Don't worry," you say, "sophomore year isn't that bad. It's the junior year that's the killer."

You can sense the end of the tunnel. You can't see the light yet, but you know its there. But then...that does still leave you tromping in the dark.

Only one year left.

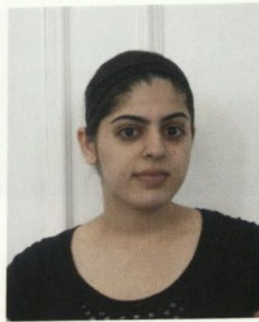

Green, green, green! When it comes to school spirit, the Green Knights are right out in front. (Unless they're in the back planning how to out do the other classes; but all in good fun.)

Golden Hearts

Okay, dig deep. It's not a dream, you really are a senior. That's right, last year. Grad school, job interviews, sorting through four years of stuff, making sure you attend every extra-curricular event on campus, and somehow squeeze every remaining class into your schedule. Sounds like fun, huh? This is the year you can't wait to move on, but at the same time might actually start missing Wesleyan. Now you find out the payoff for those years of work. This is your last chance to leave a lasting impression as a student. This is the last chance to lead the Golden Hearts to victory in soccer, STUNT, and everything else. You better get busy.

Famous for the VW on the Mount Vernon porch, the Golden Hearts this year won class soccer and STUNT, and still had time to coat the Dining Hall Madness wall with yellow. Anywhere these ladies go, the gold of a trophy is sure to follow.

Hail, Wesleyan, thou emblem of all that is grand,
The noblest, the greatest in all our fair land;
Thine ideals are honored, thy name always blest;
A fountain of knowledge, the oldest and best.

A star in the dark is thy glorious past;
Forever and ever they glory shal last;
Upholding thy ideals, thy daughters shall be,
True, faithful, and loyal, dear Wesleyan, to thee.
